

Wild Venison is good for you and your heart - providing a welcome alternative for people on a variety of diets, offering twice as much iron content as beef or lamb, as well as being a valuable source of essential Omega 3 acids.

Being naturally wild the deer are not given any dietary supplements or medications. Additionally they are not stressed by being kept in enclosures and are free to roam unlike farmed venison. The use of professional deer managers and a pioneering traceability system ensures a quality product.
